OCTOBER 2014

VOL V NO 3

A WORD FROM THE DIRECTOR

Even as we go forth in service to God's people, we know the need for our own spiritual grounding and renewal. Don't miss Pegge Erkeneff's reflection on landscapes that support spiritual grounding for ministry. (See page 2.) Here is where our ministries are taking us this fall:

Praying with St. Ignatius Parish Retreats. On September 10th, two retreat teams were commissioned to serve in two diocesan parishes this fall: Our Lady of the Lake Parish, Euclid began this 8-week retreat on Monday, September 22nd. Blessed Trinity Parish, Cleveland welcomed the retreat this past Tuesday, September 30th. 68 retreatants will be participating.

Nurturing the Call. Martha Campbell and Janet Lehane will once again team up to offer a learning process to the Leaders/Facilitators of the Praying with St. Ignatius and the St Ignatius & Walsh Jesuit Spirituality Program for Adults. See page 2 for details. Still time to register! Deadline: October 6th

Food for the Journey. Spiritual directors, retreat leaders, pastoral ministers and those who have made the full Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius Loyola will gather for this three-session fall book reflection group on Saturday mornings: October 11th, November 8th and December 6th. We will reflect on the process of conversion as seen in the life of a contemporary spiritual leader, Karen Armstrong. Details on page 2.

Ignatian Spirituality Collaborative of Northeast Ohio. The September meeting of the ISC was hosted at 2907 Church Street, the office home of the Ignatian Spirituality Project and the Ignatian Volunteer Corps. Representatives from the following organizations participated: Gesu Parish, Jesuit Retreat House, Ignatian Spirituality Institute, Ignatian Spirituality Project, Ignatian Volunteer Corps, Spirituality Program for Adults at St. Ignatius High School and Spirituality Program for Adults at Walsh Jesuit High School. See details regarding the ISP October Fund-Raiser on page 2.

CALLED AND SENT SPIRITUAL FORMATION PROGRAM - FALL MODULE NEWS

Ignatian Foundations. This 7-part, monthly module began on September 22nd when 12 members of the St. Ignatius High School Board of Regents gathered to begin this spiritual formation series. Martha Campbell and Rich Jerdonek facilitated while Ryan Masterson, a Jesuit scholastic serving at St. Ignatius High School, offered reflections on the person of Ignatius Loyola. The series continues next month when the participants will share their insights on Ignatius' life based on an essay by Ron Hansen.

Encountering Jesus Christ. This 6-week module, designed and developed by Andy Kereky, had its first session this past September 25th. Offered at Andy's home parish, St. Raphael Parish, Bay Village, 40+ participants began this journey together. Participants articulated their hopes for the program which included: enriching their practice of prayer, deepening their personal love for Jesus Christ, developing/enhancing a prayerful and reflective attitude toward life, growing in self-knowledge and developing a greater awareness of God's merciful love.

DEEPENING OUR AWARENESS - SOMETHING TO PONDER

Emerging Wisdom: Shadow Dance A Reflection by Pegge Erkeneff *

While in Santa Fe, New Mexico, USA, a free morning offered an opportunity to walk for several hours. Alone, no destination in mind, I wandered the streets near the central plaza, each step deliberate, my smartphone camera in one hand. I stepped breath by breath, allowing myself to be led by instinct and curiosity. I picked up the pace, or paused, and parked myself on more than one bench to listen or write in a small journal.

Throughout this contemplative walk to notice and appreciate, my gaze and attention drew again and again to tree shadows of stark branches – barely budding with leaves – a dark contrast to the rising sun. My eyes drew toward a cloudless blue sky at 7,000 feet of altitude, and I paid attention to the curious way branches reached toward and touched one another in a circular embrace, or interwoven entanglement. Bird song accompanied me when I myself hummed a tune. Tucked into a museum courtyard near yet another statue, the breeze created a shadow branch dance upon sand-colored adobe walls. Shapes crisscrossed my skin and body, light and dark moving freely. My inner and outer awareness shifted into harmony, wholeness, and absolute acceptance of the moment, distinction and judgment absent.

A day later, Roshi Joan Halifax would describe spiritual companioning as coming alongside someone, similar as if two boats drifted together in a current. I experienced this shadow dance of branch and limb structures, and tree branch embrace or entanglement, as clues about how to be in relationship with my own story, and how we gather in community, a coming alongside one another.

In order to counter the suffering I see and encounter in the world, with people I accompany, and within my own skin, I need elemental places of wildness – trees, rocks, rivers, horizon views, shadow, thunderstorms, snow. Perhaps you do too. All of these elements assist me to become grounded in the here and now, with roots like a tree, and branches to move with ease in the wind. ...

A landscape can befriend us offering the opportunity to pause, receive, accept, reciprocate, and penetrate into essence. A spiritual companion or guide will come alongside us during our leafing, shedding, and emergence when we seek to integrate shadow and light – a discernment of our next best step within our own life particularities. ...

Where is your spiritual practice most enlivened? What landscapes aid you to show up and listen, reconciling dark and light, suffering and joy, with-in the skin of your body – your dwelling place in this life?
